VERMONT PHŒNIX.

The following communication is well timed. We trust something will be done for the improvement of our sidewalks. Even upon Main street, of H. they are in a most wretched condition, and they seem to be the worst before the residences and grounds of some of our most wealthy citizens .-Pride and personal comfort should induce them to improve before their own homes, if public spirit does not move them.

Our Side Walks.

Mr Editor :-- In your last Phonix you gave us a peep into some of the prosperity which attends our village at the present time, and truly it was flattering to our village pride, to see a recital of even a part of the sources of our prosperity. I could not help imagining how happy our population must be how few poor and distressed we have among usand how abundance pervades the fireside of every family where economy and temperance are practi-Yet amidst all these fine feelings, I happened to look at my feet. Med! mud! mud! one, two, six inches deep, up and down our streets. With here and there a few rods of some kind of mineral here and there a few rods of some kind of mineral as an exception, all was mud; sidewalks a little deeper with mud than even the centre of the street. Wo be to man or woman that has dared walk on for business or pleasure the last four or five weeks. If they escaped being lost in the bottomless abyss of mud, they were fortunate indeed. In fact, when I think of the great prosperity of our village, and then think of our sidewalks, I feel some as a certain fine Bird is said to feel, when he turns his fine pluonage to view his more useful appendage, feet. Suppose our Lords of the hightones will linger undying in the hearts of all who knew her.

No one approached her, who did not also admire her; no one knew her, who did not love her, love her the season. Let them only think of all the efforts that have been made during the Spring months, by men, women and children, to pass and repass our sidewalks, and my word tor it, we shall have fifty or a hundred rods more of hard material to step on the coming Spring.

The notorious Mike Walsh of New York city, the leader of the "Subterraneans," has been lecturing in Fitchburg, upon the position and duties of Workingmen. The Lecture is spoken very highly of by the "Wachusett Independent."

April Fool:—On the evening of "All Fools day," our villagers were startled by the repeated cry of fire! fire! and the ringing of alarm bells. Immediately our streets were thronged with anxious citizens, groping their way in the dark, caquiring for the Locus in quo. Some were sent in one direction and some in another. The Engine and Hook and Ladder Companies were promptly at their posts, and started on a fruitless search for the scene of destruction. Soon the boys solved all difficulties by shouting "April Fool!" "April Fool!"

It is said, however, that a chimney did actually get on fire, and that the momentary blaze caused the first alarm.
